Company Profile

Church & Dwight Co., Inc., founded in 1846, is the leading U.S. producer of sodium bicarbonate, popularly known as baking soda, a natural product that cleans, deodorizes, leavens and buffers. The Company's ARM & HAMMER brand is one of the nation's most trusted trademarks for a broad range of consumer and specialty products developed from the base of bicarbonate and related technologies.

Church & Dwight's consumer products business is organized into two segments: Consumer Domestic, which encompasses both household and personal care products, and Consumer International, which primarily consists of personal care products. About 40% of the Company's U.S. consumer products are sold under the ARM & HAMMER brand name and derivative trademarks, such as ARM & HAMMER DENTAL CARE Toothpaste and ARM & HAMMER SUPER SCOOP Clumping Cat Litter.

In 2001, Church & Dwight expanded its household products business with the acquisition of the laundry brands XTRA and NICE'N FLUFFY, as part of the acquisition of USA Detergents, Inc.

Later that year, Church & Dwight acquired the consumer products business of Carter-Wallace, Inc., purchasing the ARRID Antiperspirant and LAMBERT KAY Pet Care brands outright, and the remainder of the business, including such brands as TROJAN Condoms, NAIR Depilatories and FIRST RESPONSE Home Pregnancy and Ovulation Test Kits, through Armkel LLC, a 50/50 joint venture with a private equity company. In May 2004, Church & Dwight acquired the 50% interest in Armkel that it did not already own, and merged Armkel into Church & Dwight.

In 2003, the Company acquired the former Unilever oral care business in the United States and Canada, comprising the MENTADENT, PEPSODENT and AIM Toothpaste brands, and exclusive licensing rights to CLOSE-UP Toothpaste. Late in 2005, the Company expanded its oral care business with the acquisition of the SPINBRUSH battery-operated toothbrush business from Procter & Gamble.

In August 2006, the Company expanded its household brand portfolio with the acquisition of the net assets of Orange Glo International, which included such brands as OXI CLEAN, a premium-priced leader in the fast-growing laundry pre-wash additive category, KABOOM bathroom cleaners, and ORANGE GLO household cleaner products.

The combination of the core ARM & HAMMER brands and the acquired businesses makes Church & Dwight one of the leading consumer packaged goods companies in the United States. Church & Dwight's third business segment is Specialty Products. This business is a leader in specialty inorganic chemicals, animal nutrition, and specialty cleaners.

A chart of major Church & Dwight products appears on pages 11 and 12 of this Report.

Dear Fellow Stockholder:

It is a pleasure to report the completion of another successful year. Church & Dwight delivered a 30% Total Shareholder Return (TSR) to you through a combination of stock price appreciation and dividends. This result builds upon the Company's impressive record of delivering a consistent return to stockholders, averaging 20% a year over the last 10 years, close to 3 times that of the S&P 500 stock index.

These results reflect the relentless work of an experienced management team that is never satisfied with the status quo. In the past 10 years, Church & Dwight has been transformed from largely a domestic household products company with one iconic brand, ARM & HAMMER, delivering $450 million in annual sales, into a diversified consumer packaged goods company with a well balanced portfolio of leading household and personal care brands delivering almost $2 billion in annual sales worldwide.

The major portion of this growth was made possible by taking advantage of the Company's strong cash flow to prudently acquire leading brands. We have integrated these acquired brands into our infrastructure to maximize synergies with our existing businesses.

Acquiring and integrating acquisitions in a stable business environment would have been an accomplishment in its own right. However, in the past two years we made four acquisitions in an environment of unprecedented increases in material and transportation costs. The increase in oil prices, which began in late 2005 and continued through all of 2006, led to significant commodity price increases. These increases in turn raised the cost of producing and shipping all of our products, particularly in the laundry category, our largest business.

Fortunately, the Company already had in place an on-going cost savings program. Increased focus behind this program, in combination with price increases on some of our products and more efficient marketing spending, enabled us to more than offset the gross margin impact of the commodity price increases on our existing business. We combined this gross margin improvement with the added benefit of cost synergies from acquisitions to deliver over 200 basis points of improvement in our total gross margin in 2006.

AS A RESULT OF THESE ACTIONS, I AM PLEASED TO REPORT THAT YOUR COMPANY ACHIEVED ANOTHER SOLID YEAR OF EARNINGS GROWTH IN 2006.

- Church & Dwight sales were $1,945.7 million on a GAAP basis, a 12% increase over the previous year. Contributing to this increase was a full year of sales of the SPINBRUSH battery-operated toothbrush business, which we acquired in November 2005, and five months of sales of the Orange Glo International (OGI) household products business, which we acquired in August 2006.
- Net income was $138.9 million, or $2.07 per share, an increase of $0.24 per share or 13% over the previous year's $122.9 million or $1.83 per share. The 2006 results include stock option expense of $0.09 per share. Excluding this expense, the year's net income of $2.07 per share would have been $2.16 per share or 18% higher than the previous year's $1.83 per share.
- The Company generated $186 million of cash from operating activities and invested $47 million in capital expenditures in arriving at free cash flow of $139 million.

We took several key steps during the year which are expected to position the Company for continued strong business growth in 2007. These include the creation of a new product development group, the acquisition of the OGI business, and a higher rate of marketing spending, all of which are expected to contribute to higher revenues and profits in 2007.

Setting the Stage for Future Growth

Church & Dwight has undergone a substantial transformation in the past decade largely through a series of acquisitions that tripled the size of the Company, created a well balanced portfolio of household and personal care businesses, and established a larger international business. Looking forward, my top priority is to ensure that the Company has a vision and strategies that will enable us to build upon this successful foundation and continue to deliver superior returns to our stockholders.

The Company's current vision is very clear and has a few critical components: First, we are focused on building brands that have #1 and #2 share positions in their categories, or an identifiable niche like our value-oriented laundry business. These strong market positions provide clear benefits in terms of scale in manufacturing and marketing, merchandising benefits with retailers, and pricing strength. And, these benefits must be sustainable to drive long-term profitable growth. Second, we are explicitly focused on TSR. Our goal is to continue to deliver TSR that will provide our stockholders with strong returns over the long-term.

Delivering Strong TSR Requires a Relentless Focus on Six Key Areas:

First, we must improve brand positioning in each of our businesses to ensure that our brands stay relevant to consumers. We must understand what the consumer wants, design our products to fulfill those needs, and clearly communicate through media used by those consumers. We must also do this in the most efficient and effective manner. Improved brand positioning has played a key role in the recent significant growth of several of our core businesses. For example, a major initiative in 2006 to unify the marketing of the ARM & HAMMER brand, our largest brand, across all of its different forms, quadrupled the growth rate of the brand in 2006. We have continued to refine this marketing campaign and expect it to drive continued strong growth in 2007.

Second, we must accelerate new product development to meet the ever-changing needs of consumers. To support this effort, in 2006, we created a separate team within our marketing organization that is solely focused on new product development. This new team is utilizing both internal and external resources to identify, design and commercialize products. Accordingly, the Company plans to launch a record number of new products in 2007 which will be supported by strong marketing programs.

IN OUR HOUSEHOLD PRODUCTS BUSINESS, WE WILL LAUNCH SEVERAL NEW PRODUCTS:

- Our product line will be enhanced by the launch of ARM & HAMMER ESSENTIALS liquid laundry detergent. This product will be formulated from plant-based ingredients and baking soda to deliver the same powerful cleaning power as regular ARM & HAMMER detergent. This product is expected to have strong appeal among the growing base of environmentally conscious consumers.

- We are launching a portable instant stain remover that will instantly dissolve most common stains. The portable instant stain remover segment is a new and fast growing segment and we expect that the launch of this product under the popular OXI CLEAN brand name will receive strong consumer acceptance. In addition, new and innovative products for the pet and deodorizing categories are planned to be launched in the second and third quarters.

IN THE PERSONAL CARE AREA, THE COMPANY WILL LAUNCH A VARIETY OF NEW PRODUCTS:

- A new sub-line of NAIR depilatory products called PRETTY is being launched. These products are specially formulated for the more sensitive skin of young girls in their teens and tweens.
- In the condom category, we will continue to be an innovation leader with the introduction of TROJAN INTENSE RIBBED, a new condom with special formulated ribbing for those users who desire increased pleasure without any compromise in protection. This innovative new product and our continued strong marketing support is expected to drive strong growth of the TROJAN brand, which achieved record sales and profits in 2006.
- The FIRST RESPONSE brand, the fastest growing pregnancy kit brand over the past several years, will be launching an improved pregnancy kit in 2007 that will enhance the brand's reputation as the first to accurately detect whether or not a woman is pregnant.
- Our oral care business will benefit from the introduction of several exciting new SPINBRUSH toothbrushes including a unique two-speed battery-operated SPINBRUSH and our first rechargeable SPINBRUSH that will be sold at a lower price point than any other rechargeable toothbrush in the market. These innovative new toothbrushes are expected to generate strong category growth for battery-operated and rechargeable toothbrushes given their superior cleaning power versus traditional manual toothbrushes.

In addition to launching our own new products, the Company is stepping up its licensing efforts. For example, in 2006, the Electrolux Company launched an entire line of replacement vacuum bags under the ARM & HAMMER brand name that fit all types of vacuum cleaners. This and other licensing efforts will leverage our brands and technologies into other categories where we lack direct competitive strength, while reinforcing consumer awareness of our brands.

These are just a few examples of the innovative new products being launched in 2007 to accelerate the Company's organic revenue growth. While we are pleased with the number of new products being launched, our goal is to develop and launch even more new products at a faster rate in the future to keep up with the demands of our consumers and to stay a step ahead of our competitors.

The third element to delivering strong TSR results is significant improvement in gross margin through cost improvement programs, more efficient trade promotion spending, and a tight control of overhead expenses. The Company has a proven track record in this area and we are utilizing both internal and external resources to ensure that we have in place the best practices in every link of the supply chain and our overhead structure. In 2007, we will also benefit from price increases that took effect in the second quarter of 2006 to recapture part of the recent significant increases in commodity costs. The combined impact of these actions is expected to deliver at least a 125 basis point increase in gross margin. These activities will also lay the groundwork for future gross margin improvement in 2008 and 2009.

The fourth major element is to increase the global leverage of our businesses by expanding our core categories into markets where we currently sell our other lines of products, by entering large emerging markets and by globalizing our supply chain to lower costs. Our recent acquisitions have given us a stronger platform internationally and we now need to maximize our marketing and international scale across that platform to achieve more profitable growth.

The fifth major element is to continue to create value by pursuing TSR-accretive acquisitions that can be bolted onto our existing asset base with minimal additional capital and overhead costs. Church & Dwight has a proven track record as a consolidator in the consumer packaged goods industry. Our acquisitions have created great value for our stockholders in recent years. We will continue to pursue acquisitions, preferably in core categories and geographies that bolster our portfolio with #1 or #2 brands that have high margins and high growth potential. In that regard, we are very pleased with the recent acquisition of the Orange Glo International business which enhanced our laundry care business with a premium priced leading brand, OXI CLEAN, in the growing laundry additive category.

Finally, the most important element needed to deliver shareholder returns is superior leadership and functional excellence. Without this, the company will not realize its maximum potential. I consider the creation of a work culture that is driven by inspiration, prudent risk taking, and respect for fellow employees to be one of my most important responsibilities. This requires continual upgrading of the leadership skills and functional expertise across all aspects of our business.

The management team at Church & Dwight is fully committed to creating shareholder value. Our bonuses are tied directly to the key drivers of TSR: revenue growth, operating margin expansion, and free cash flow generation. Our equity compensation consists of predominately stock options that are valuable to us only when the value of your investment rises. And, the senior management team is required to have a significant investment in Company stock in order to be closely aligned with our stockholders.

Outlook

Our long-term objective is to maintain the Company's track record of delivering strong Total Shareholder Return relative to the S&P 500. To do this, we must achieve sustained earnings growth, which we currently define as 10-12% earnings per share growth on an organic basis excluding acquisitions.

Our long-term business model for delivering this sustained earnings growth is based on solid organic revenue growth, improved gross margin, tight management of overhead costs, and lower interest expense. In 2007, we expect to achieve a substantial increase in gross margin through cost reduction programs, acquisition synergies, and the carry over effect of pricing actions implemented in 2006.

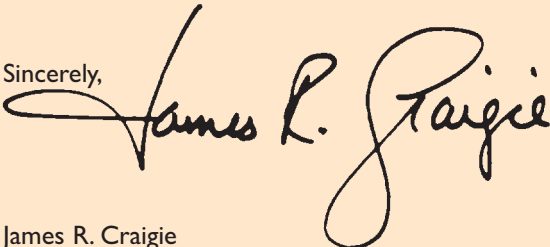

While we achieved strong organic revenue growth of over 4% in 2004 and 2005, the pricing actions implemented in early 2006 resulted in lower organic growth. We expect organic growth to return to our long-term target range of 3-4% after the first quarter of 2007, which is the anniversary of our 2006 pricing actions. We expect that stronger organic growth in the last three quarters of 2007 will be driven by new product introductions across every key category and increased marketing support.

In closing, I want to thank the Board for its continuing guidance and support for the Company's vision. In this regard, I am particularly grateful to my predecessor, Robert A. Davies, III, whose unwavering support has greatly enhanced my ability to evolve the Company's strategy and build upon the solid foundation that he created.

I also want to thank Zvi Eiref, the Company's Chief Financial Officer from 1995 through September 2006. Zvi's dedication and financial discipline played a major role in creating the Company that we have today. Zvi's devotion was demonstrated by his agreement to continue working full time until the end of 2006 to ensure a smooth transition to his successor, Matthew T. Farrell.

Finally, I would like to thank all of the employees of Church & Dwight for once again rising to the challenge of delivering excellent business results despite an increasingly difficult business environment. Their willingness to constantly challenge the status quo to develop appealing new products for our consumers and to provide outstanding service to our customers is the backbone of our great Company.

I look forward to communicating with you on these efforts at the Annual Stockholders Meeting and throughout the year.

Sincerely,

James R. Craigie
